Production. Blood of Ghastly Horror has a unique history behind it. It was re-edited from an earlier film directed by Al Adamson in 1965 titled Psycho A-Go-Go. That film was a straight action thriller about a mentally disturbed man named Joe Corey who pulls off a diamond heist and the stolen jewels wind up hidden in a child's doll,...

BLOOD OF GHASTLY HORROR (1972) Director: Al Adamson Troma . This is a prime example of Al Adamson and Sam Sherman's knack for patchwork filmmaking. This was shot over a period of seven years, starting in 1964 with ECHO OF TERROR. Photographed by future Oscar winner Vilmos Zsigmond, this was Adamson's attempt at making a serious thriller.
